Virtue/Moir teamed up in 1997. They are the first North American ice dancers to win the Olympic gold medal. They are also the first Canadian ice dancers to win the ISU World Junior Championships (in 2006). Moir's elder brother Danny competed at the international junior level as well and now coaches. His mother is a skating coach and his father played hockey. The couple missed the ISU Grand Prix Series in 2008 as Virtue suffered from chronic exertional compartment syndrome on both shins, underwent surgery in September and was off the ice until beginning of December 2008.

Khokhlova/Novitksi teamed up in October 2001. Novitski switched to ice dance at age 13 because he only landed double jumps. Khokhlova skated in a Moscow childrens' ice ballet until she was 13 years old. She then wanted to go into pair skating and started practicing jumps. However, a coach suggested she should try ice dance instead.

Navarro/Bommentre teamed up in 2005. Navarro began skating at the age of three because her mother teaches skating. Her mother Lisa competed nationally as a pairs skater and her father John is a eight-degree black belt in karate. Bommentre took up skating at age six because his doctor recommended it for his asthma.

Samuelson began skating at age 5 after watching another girl while she was on vacation in Switzerland. She has two younger sisters. Bates' sister runs marathons and his brother is a dodgeball player. His father was the captain of Princeton's cross country team. Standing in second place after the Original Dance, Samuelson/Bates withdrew from the 2007 World Junior Championships during the Free Dance after she fell and he accidentally stepped on her hand, severing the tendon in her middle finger. The injury required hand surgery. Coaches Netchaeva and Tchesnitchenko were the 1992 World Junior Ice Dance silver medallists (competing for the Soviet Union).
